DUKE AT MANCHESTER LAW LIBRARY

HRH The Duke of Gloucester has unveiled a plaque at the Manchester Law Library. His visit to the library, in Kennedy Street, marked the 190th anniversary of the foundation of the library and the 125th anniversary of its move to its present, purpose-built, home.

Commented Mr Hassall, "The Duke, an architect by training, was keenly interested in our building, as well as the historic volumes in the library. He was also keen to learn how the library continues to serve the legal community in the North West in the modern age".

During his visit the Duke met about 50 Manchester-based judges, solicitors and barristers.

The Library offers an unequalled resource to the Legal Profession in Manchester and beyond. How can the Library assist you?
